> The Bland Bill Tabled-WASHINGTON, March 25,-There

seldom been seen in the house as was witnessed yesterday. The silver debate had been dragging along. as it has dragged along ever since the silver bill was up, with no relief in the way of red fire until Bourke Cockran of New York took the floor. There was a great rush to the gallery and to hear this man as he was understood to be an orator from way back. He has made no speech this session and everyone was anxious to hear him, and he did make a great speech-a sort of declamation-in which he touched the edges of the main questions as e skimmed along, and after he skimmed along, and after he had concluded and the roise of peechifying had died, Burrows Michigan moved that the bill be laid on the table. Then the vote commenced. As it progressed it became evident that the vote was going to be ery close. After much voting and rangling, in which the services of the sergeant-at-arms was several times required, the vote stood 148 to 145 against laying the bill on the table. Bland then gave up the fight the nouse adjourned and the bill goes back
